

Merchants and Vendors (aka Sutlers)

In the 19th century civilians called Sutlers followed the armies to sell items not available from the government, such as pen and paper, sweet treats, tobacco, patent medicines, reading materials, buttons, and even body armor. This tradition continues today at reenactments nationwide.

Plan to upgrade your reenacting kit or fill your civilian attire needs with one of the many excellent period merchants who will be setting up shop at the 155th Anniversary Battle of New Market Reenactment.

Adler's Dry Goods- General Mercantile

B Form Shirts and Sundries-General Mercantile

Battlefield Woodshop-Wood Products

Crow Mercantile- General Mercantile

Fall Creek Sutlery- Military and Civilian Items

Harrington Traveling Artist-Art

Haycock Wood Company – Wood Furniture, Toys, Dolls

Jeweler's Daughter-Jewelry

Mac's Sutlery- Original and Reproduction Accessories

Maryland Sutler- Military and Civilian Items

North State Haberdashery-General Mercantile

Quartermaster Shop – Military and Civilian Items

Regimental Quartermaster – Military Goods

S & S Sutlery of Gettysburg – Military & Civilian Items

Southern Family Impressions-Civilian Items

The Button Baron – Specializing in Antique Buttons

Virginia Museum of the Civil War's General's Store – V.M.I. Apparel, Books, Souvenirs.